

Fast Iggy - The clown with the black tears on his face

"Follow your feelings," Fast Iggi said, looking into Anna's eyes.

"I have feelings, too," Otto said to Fast Iggi.

"All dogs do," Fast Iggi replied.

Otto frowned. He didn't like to be told that he was like other dogs.

"I have more feelings than most dogs," Otto said. "Other dogs only feel love and hate and fear and jealousy and happiness."

"And what do you feel?" Fast Iggi asked him.

"I feel many, many things. Hundreds, and hundreds of different emotions," Otto said.

"Such as?" Fast Iggi said.

"Well," Otto said, "to reduce it to a simple alphabet, in my life I have felt Adventurous, Bemused, Compassionate, Delighted, Excited, Funny, Gleeful, Hopeful, Inspired, Joyous, Kindly, Lively, Merry, Nonchalant, Peaceful, Quick, Receptive, Satisfied, Tranquil, Unruffled, Victorious, XCited, Yummy, and Zealous."

"Do you only feel good feelings?" Fast Iggi asked.

"No, I've felt painful things – a full alphabet of emotions and more."

"Such as" Fast Iggi asked.